Chapter 1 : Spanish Pioneers California Missions Lummis Charles

The spanish missions in california comprise a series of 21 religious outposts or missions established between 1769 and 1833 in today's u.s. state of california. Founded by catholic priests of the franciscan order to evangelize the native americans, the missions led to the creation of the new spain province of alta california and were part of the expansion of the spanish empire into the west. Starting in 1769, spain built a chain of 21 missions across the length of alta california —from san diego to sonoma—as a way of gaining a foothold in the new frontier. california's mission era ended in 1834, but you can still see the architectural legacy that endures in the state's red tile roofs, whitewashed walls, arched colonnades, and bell towers. The first european explorers, flying the flags of spain and of england, sailed along the coast of california from the early 16th century to the mid-18th century, but no european settlements were established. The most important colonial power, spain, focused attention on its imperial centers in mexico and perfunctory of spanish claims to all lands touching the pacific ocean (including Spanish trail, utah the history of the spanish trail the spanish trail was a 1,200-mile long northward-looping trade route mainly utilized in the early 19th century. it traversed six states along its northward-looping course: new mexico, colorado, utah, arizona, nevada, and california.
